Makes children's eyes sparkle even before painting.
Cast or knead your very own sidewalk chalks.

THE FUN STARTS WITH THE MAKING.

Children like sidewalk chalks

The courtyard entrances become street driveways for children's vehicles and the pavements turn into little art studios. Inventing completely new worlds outside with the sidewalk chalk and playing with it together with other children is one of the little ones' favourite pastimes.

And parents are also happy. The kids are playing outside. Killing some time with mobile phone games? Dead loss!

Looking for even more fun?

No problem: from now on, children can simply make their own sidewalk chalk! There are no limits here to their creativity. As colourful as they like it and in their favourite shape.

And with Rayher, it's easy-peasy: cast or knead and then start painting. So the fun starts already with the making!

Double fun: first casting – then painting

Mixing things with water, stirring, trying things out, mixing different colours together: children can occupy themselves with these activities for hours. Moreover: it's so easy that they don't need any help.

And best of all: the cast works can also be painted with the casting chalk. After drying, the chalk is pleasantly soft. Perfect to continue playing outside and creating landscapes and fantasy worlds over there.

Casting chalk – it's that easy:

- 1 Mix the chalk casting powder with water.
- 2 Pour the casting compound into your favourite mould.
- 3 Demould the chalk after 1 - 2 hours.
Let it harden completely for 1 day, then paint it!

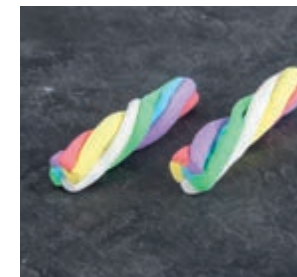

Colourful and multi-layered...
This is how chalk becomes something very special: blend the colours together or pour them into the casting mould in layers.

Double joy: first kneading – then painting

Rolling out, shaping, cutting out with cookie cutters, feeling by touch: intuitively, the children will know for sure what they can do with this soft modelling material. They immediately have countless shapes, colour combinations and figurines in mind, so that they can get started right away.

Kneading is a lot of fun for kids and at the same time, it promotes creativity and hones motor skills. And after the kneading fun comes into play the painting fun! After one to two days of air-drying, the chalk stick is ready for use.

Open the box – start kneading right away

The soft sidewalk chalk kneading compound is ready to use and can be applied directly from the box: get started right away! Kneading, twisting, twining, cutting out with cookie cutters, modelling figurines or combining colours – the kids will certainly have their own ideas on how it could be further used.

What's more: the kneading chalk dries in open air, is gluten-free and vegan. And it doesn't stick to your hands.

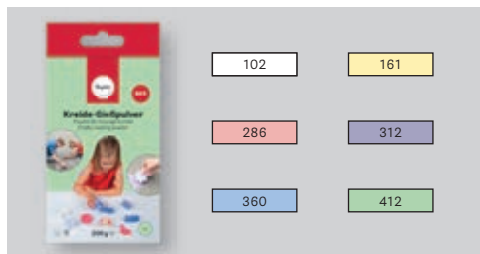

Important: Store opened packaging airtight in a bucket, thus the children can enjoy it for a long time.

Christmas accessories with a twofold purpose

The cookie cutters that are usually used for the Christmas biscuits are perfect for our kneading chalk.
