89 543 00	Side cutter for jewellery

Needle & sewing thread, possibly toothpick

Instructions:

- 1 Insert the raw-wood ball onto a paintbrush tip or a suitable wooden stick.
- 2 Paint the raw-wood ball, to serve as a head, by means of the paintbrush from the set. You can sketch out the face as an aid with a pencil (example template enclosed). Paint the raw-wood ball with a diameter of 12 mm by means of the All Purpose paint, colour chocolate (for the hair in bun). For the face, start with the All Purpose paint, colour nude, which you lighten a bit with the All Purpose paint, colour snow-white. Paint the hair and the rest of the face afterwards. For the cheeks, mix a drop of the vivid red paint with the white paint. Allow to dry well out.
- 3 Thread 20 cm of the white jewellery cord through the eyelet of the lobster clasp. Lay both ends of the decorative cord on top of each other and thread both ends through the raw-wood ball of 12mm (for the hair in bun) and then through the small head. As a spacing element between the head (raw-wood ball) and the body (soft tulle pompom), thread through a white bead from the wooden bead mix.

TIP: A toothpick makes it easier to push the decorative cord through the raw-wood ball hole. After that, tie a knot so that the lobster clasp gets more space to move.

4 Tie a simple knot in the middle with the remaining decorative cord. Now, sew firmly the head and the legs separately to the inside of the pompom with a matching sewing thread. Always sew the ends of the thread.

5 Then, thread the white wooden beads from the mix as shoes and tie a knot at the desired leg length. Cut off the cord ends.

6 Finally, thread the 12 white Rocailles beads onto the brass wire and attach the bridal hair wreath by twisting it between the small head and the bun.

TIP: The Pomponellas can be worn on a necklace, used as a bag charm, for a baby mobile or on a gift wrapping.
